Step 1: Attend Meeting

- Review the supplemental module welcome materials provided by your facilitator.
- At the first meeting, your facilitator will provide an overview of the program and ensure you have access to the Thrive Initiative website and supplemental module.

Step 2: Complete Homework [For Supplemental Module Meeting 1]

Please complete the following activities in preparation for the next meeting:

- _____ Complete the Adolescent Mental Health: Parenting to Wellness supplemental module's Welcome and Introduction.
- _____ Complete Part 1: Psychoeducation
- _____ Download and review the materials mentioned from the Parent Toolkit resources in the supplemental module.
- _____ Prepare to discuss the topics addressed in the Welcome and Introduction and Part 1 during the next meeting by answering the questions in Step 3: Prepare Community-Building Activities/Discussion Questions. If you have any questions you would like to ask during the discussion, note them in Step 4

Step 3: Prepare Community-Building Activities/Discussion Questions

Write your responses in the blue boxes on the next few pages as you prepare for the next meeting. During the Supplemental Module Meeting 1 group discussion, record your notes in the magenta boxes.

As you complete the questions and activities, recognize that understanding and implementing the information we are learning will not happen immediately. You will need to use the strategies and skills you have learned throughout Adolescent Mental Health: Parenting to Wellness consistently and make them part of your everyday life in order to see desired changes in your child's or your reactions or behaviors. Keep practicing what you have learned!

Each time you meet with the other program participants as a group, share and celebrate the small, short-term, positive changes you see in your interactions with your child. Also, consider what the long-term benefits may be for your family as you continue to use the skills and strategies you have learned and are learning in the Adolescent Mental Health: Parenting to Wellness module.

Supplemental Module Introduction (Adolescent Mental Health): Interaction and Discussion Questions

In the supplemental module's introduction, you learned that mental health concerns, such as anxiety, depression, or behavior disorders, impact millions of children every year in the United States. Having good mental health is as important as having good physical health, and, while teenagers are prone to mental health challenges, they do possess great capacity for growth and resilience because their cognitive abilities and adaptive coping skills are still evolving.

- A. What developmental changes (i.e., physical, cognitive, emotional) have you observed in your adolescent?
- B. How has your adolescent adjusted to these changes? That is, have you noticed them using any coping skills or strategies to help them deal with their developmental changes?
- C. How have you adjusted to the changes you have seen (or are now observing) in your adolescent?

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): The Three Ds Interaction and Discussion Questions

Part 1 looked at various indicators that can help you identify what behaviors are normal and what behaviors could be more serious and may need to be addressed.

- A. Consider a behavior your child has displayed recently that may be of concern to you, and use the Three D's to help you understand if the behavior is typical or if it may require some further examination or intervention.
- B. Was this exercise helpful for you? How so?
- C. Are there any behaviors that your adolescent or teen has displayed that concern you?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): Problems Associated with Mental Health Interaction and Discussion Questions - Depression

Familiarizing yourself with the signs and symptoms of different mental health concerns that are common in adolescence may help you determine when to seek help for your child.

Part 1 looked at depression and highlighted the fact that experiencing a depressive episode is highest during puberty. Signs of depression in adolescents can include rapid mood changes (e.g., crying spells, lashing out), insomnia or sleeping too much, or losing interest in activities they once enjoyed.

- A. Do you notice your child exhibiting any non-typical or concerning behaviors that cause you concern and may indicate your child needs support?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): Problems Associated with Mental Health Interaction and Discussion Questions – Anxiety Disorders

Next, part 1 examined anxiety disorders. Everyone experiences stress, worry, and anxiety. However, there may be cause for concern when worries occur almost daily, are hard to manage, and interfere with daily life. Anxiety can also be experienced as physical symptoms, like stomach aches, headaches, restlessness, or muscle tension, and it can interfere with one's ability to concentrate. Individuals may be more irritable or more easily annoyed when they are experiencing anxiety. In addition, they may also have sleep problems, like insomnia or waking often during the night.

- A. Do you notice your child exhibiting any non-typical or concerning behaviors that cause you concern and may indicate your child needs support?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): Problems Associated with Mental Health Interaction and Discussion Questions – Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder

Part 1 also explored obsessive compulsive disorder (OCD), which, for adolescents, may present as unwanted thoughts, images, urges (obsessions), repetitive behaviors, touching or counting objects, or redoing actions (compulsions).

Note: OCD is relatively rare in the population compared to other disorders, such as depression and anxiety disorders, which makes it difficult to recognize and diagnose.

- A. Do you notice your child exhibiting any non-typical or concerning behaviors that cause you concern and may indicate your child needs support?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): Problems Associated with Mental Health Interaction and Discussion Questions – Eating Disorders

The next concern Part 1 examined was eating disorders. The three most common eating disorders are anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa, and binge-eating disorder.

- A. What are the differences among these eating disorders?
- B. What are some of the signs of eating disorders discussed in the module?
- C. What health complications can result in an individual who has an eating disorder?
- D. Do you notice your child exhibiting any non-typical or concerning behaviors?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): Problems Associated with Mental Health Interaction and Discussion Questions – Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder

Part 1 also explored attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). Teens diagnosed with ADHD-predominantly hyperactivity/impulsivity presentation display hyperactive behaviors (e.g., fidgeting, excessive talking, high energy) and impulsive behaviors (e.g., interrupting or blurting out statements, spur-of-the-moment decision-making).

Adolescents diagnosed with ADHD-predominantly inattentive presentation may have difficulty focusing their attention, managing their time, and getting organized. Some teenagers are diagnosed with ADHD-combined presentation since they have difficulty with hyperactivity, impulsivity, and inattention.

- A. Do you notice your child exhibiting any non-typical or concerning behaviors that cause you concern and may indicate your child needs support?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): Problems Associated with Mental Health Interaction and Discussion Questions – Disruptive and Rule Breaking Disorders

Part 1 next looked at disruptive and rule breaking disorders. Adolescence is a period of time when the teenager and those close to them (e.g., parent, siblings) may experience increased conflict. However, there are important boundaries to recognize between what is normal (e.g., talking back and minor rule breaking) and what is problematic (e.g., breaking rules, being aggressive toward others and animals, lying to manipulative, stealing from others).

A. Do you notice your child exhibiting any non-typical or concerning behaviors that cause you concern and may indicate your child needs support?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 1 (Psychoeducation): The Alabaster Family: Interaction and Discussion Questions

In the supplemental module, you were introduced to the Alabaster family: Remi (father), Fern (mother), Kiara (age 14), and Stefan (age 10). So far, we have learned a few things about Kiara (e.g., athletic, involved in extracurriculars, displayed strong emotions as a child, acts shy with new people, bubbly and outgoing with friends). At the end of Part 1, we caught up with the Alabaster family and got updates on Kiara's well-being.

- A. What typical behaviors of adolescence do you see in Kiara?
- B. Do you notice Kiara exhibiting any non-typical behaviors that may be cause for concern, such as signs or symptoms of a potential mental health challenges?

? Part 2 (Parents' Role in Helping Child Return to Wellness): Using I Statements to Express Mental Health Concerns Interaction and Discussion Questions

In Part 2, you created an I statement for the Alabaster Family.

- A. Does anyone want to share their drafted I statement or provide an example of an I statement?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 2 (Parents' Role in Helping Child Return to Wellness): Seeking Mental Health Services for Your Child Interaction and Discussion Questions

In Part 2, you learned about indicators that may prompt you to seek professional help for your child.

- A. Does your child exhibit any behaviors that you believe may require professional support?
- B. Were you able to identify 2 to 3 resources you can contact to inquire about assistance for your child?
- C. Has anyone contacted a resource? Does anyone want to share about their experience?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 2 (Parents' Role in Helping Child return to Wellness): Addressing Safety Concerns with Your Child: Interaction and Discussion Questions

Starting a conversation about mental health with your adolescent can be difficult. In Part 2, you were encouraged to brainstorm what you would like to say to your child about your concerns.

- A. Would anyone like to share their drafted conversation starter? Has anyone addressed concerning behaviors with their child? If so, would you like to share about that experience?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Part 2 (Parents' Role in Helping Child return to Wellness): Ensuring Safety and Learning Coping Strategies: Interaction and Discussion Questions

Part 2 described the steps you can take at home to help you and your child feel safer in the face of suicidal ideation, self-harm, substance abuse, or other behaviors that threaten your teen's safety.

- A. Were you able to identify and discuss with your child some situations that could trigger harmful thoughts and feelings? If so, would anyone like to share what happened in that discussion?
- B. What, if any, changes did you make around your home to make the environment safer for all members of your family?
- C. What activities or strategies did you brainstorm that your child to use to help them calm down, relax, and feel better when they feel an emotional crisis coming on?
- D. Did anyone create a coping toolkit that your teen can access in a time of need? If so, would you like to share what that toolkit included?
- E. A Family Safety Plan Template is provided in the module. Did anyone use this resource? If so, what did you include in the plan?

Group discussion notes:

Part 3: Parental Self-Care Taking Care of Yourself: Interaction and Discussion Questions

In Part 3, you learned that taking time to care for yourself and prioritize your needs may help decrease the risk of burnout, alleviate the physical and mental health burdens of stress, and supply us with renewed energy.

A. What self-care strategies did you identify that may work for you?

A. What are some ways you can ensure you get the help you need, so you can practice self-care strategies?

Reflection:

 Group discussion notes:

Part 3 (Parental Self-Care): Modeling Healthy and Helpful Strategies Interaction and Discussion Questions

Parents will probably feel a variety of strong emotions as they realize their child is struggling with their mental health. These emotions may include shame, guilt, and fear. You were introduced to strategies that you could use to help you cope with your emotions, such as appealing to your interests (e.g., create art, listen to calm music), moving your body (e.g., exercise, dance), engaging in rhythmic body movements (e.g., bounce a ball, handle a fidget toys, yoga, swing, walk), and using breathing and mindfulness exercises.

- A. Which emotion, if any, do you find the most challenging for you to cope with?
- B. What emotion myths resonate the most with you? How do you challenge those beliefs?
- C. Have you demonstrated any of the unhelpful behaviors related to emotions that you have had?
- D. What, if any, strategies have you used to help you cope with your emotions?

Group discussion notes:

Wrap-Up: Reaching Emotional Wellness with your Child Discussion Questions

Parenting a child who is struggling with emotional or behavioral problems can be confusing, stressful, and emotionally draining. In the Wrap-Up, you had the opportunity to work on a coping plan template with your child and any other family members who may have wanted to join you.

- A. What kinds of activities did you brainstorm in your coping plan? What about your child? Are there any activities that you can do together?
- B. What statements did you write down that you could use to help you feel better? What statements did your child select?
- C. Did you and your child identify someone whom you could go to for help or for distraction? Are any of these individuals also listed on you or your child's Circle of Support?
- D. What did you list as the most important things in your life? What did your child or another family member share?

Reflection:

Group discussion notes:

Wrap-Up: Wrap-Up Module Discussion Summary Questions

- A. Which topic discussed in the supplemental module was the most beneficial to you as a parent ? Why?
- B. What strategies or skills did you learn in the supplemental module that will help you achieve the goals you have for your child or your family?
- C. What has changed in your interactions with your child since before you started completing the supplemental module?
- D. Have you noticed a difference in the way your child is responding to your parenting?
